HANDY STREET TELEPHONES

How the Public in Some of the Eastern Cities Is Accommodated—Experiment Proves a Success.

Cleveland, O.—The telephone has come to be one of the necessities of life, both in the business and social world, and the constant effort of the telephone companies is to make their instruments more accessible to the public. A few years ago one had to search to find a public 'phone. Then such places as drug stores, saloons and public offices became stations for them. When the slot telephone was introduced, doing away with the personal attendant necessary to collect the tolls, the idea was suggested of placing them upon the public streets where the indispensable instruments would be right at the public's elbow and save it the trouble of seeking out some drug store or other place where a public 'phone could be found.

The eastern cities are enjoying this increased convenience. For some time Philadelphia was the city farthest west where such street 'phones had been introduced. But gradually this innovation is working its way westward, and Cleveland, O. is the latest city to boast of such accommodations. Two of these new outdoor 'phones have already been installed, one at the corner of East Madison and Euclid, and the other at Bolton and Euclid. The telephone company, which is putting these instruments in, claims that they have already demonstrated their utility, and more will be installed. They will be distributed in portions of the city where public indoor telephones are scarce and hard to get at, especially at night.

The method of operation of these outdoor 'phones is as follows: The patron lifts a lever, opening the door of the inclosing box, and is then enabled to use the 'phone by dropping a nickel, just as in any other public 'phone.

TO MOVE KING'S STATUE.

Plans to Disturb Shaft Erected to Charles I. Dismays English "Legitimists."

London.—That surviving remnant of the long lost Jacobite cause, the legitimist society, views with dismay the prospect of the removal of the equestrian statue of King Charles I. from the conspicuous position it has occupied at Charing Cross.

Still cherishing the hope that one of his descendants may some day oust from the throne the representative of the reigning dynasty, they are wont publicly to testify to their faith and devotion by decorating the statue of the "martyred king," as they fondly call him, on the anniversary of his execution. The contemptuous tolerance with which his majesty regards such proceedings is shown by the fact that the annual ceremony takes place under the supervision of an agent of the crown. Standing in close proximity to the famous Trafalgar square, the statue, a picture of which is here shown, has long been a familiar one to American visitors to London. Its removal will probably be rendered necessary to make room for the entrance of the new Mall from Charing Cross. The question of finding a new site for it is under consideration.

Five Valuable Old Volumes.
London.—The Sothebys, art auctioneers, have sold by private treaty five volumes for $100,000. They are an Evangelarium of the sixth century and other similar manuscripts of the sixth to the eleventh century, formerly belonging to the Guglielmo Libri collection. Their value lies chiefly in elaborate early metal bindings and ornate enameled and bas reliefs of precious stones. The same volumes were purchased in the early '60s for $3,150, and have remained in the then purchaser's hands ever since. The name of the purchaser has not transpired.

To Prevent Seasickness.
There have been innumerable plans for preventing seasickness, but perhaps the most remarkable of any is a device by which a German navy engineer would obviate the malady by overcoming the motion which brings it about. He is Mr. O. Schlick, of Hamburg. His apparatus is designed to increase considerably the period of oscillation in the rolling of a vessel and at the same time diminish the amplitude of oscillation.

WOMEN OF JAPAN.

SHARE THEY HAVE IN PRESENT WAR WITH RUSSIA.

A "Beloved Mother" Who Is One of the Leaders in Helping the Distressed Families of Soldiers in the Field.

New York City.—That the women of Japan are made of the same stuff as the men, though obliged to take a lesser part in the present conflict with Russia, is abundantly evident from an article contributed by the wife of Admiral Uriu to Harper's Bazar.

"The rich and the poor, the high and the low, have but one object," says Mme. Uriu, "to encourage those who are at the front, to help the distressed families whose supporters have been chosen to fight for their country, and, lastly, to help those families whose dear ones have died for the cause."

One of the leaders in this work is a most interesting woman by the name of Joku Okumura, the organizer of the Ladies' Patriotic association. Mme. Okumura, although not a young woman, appears to be animated by a spirit of burning patriotism and love for humanity that knows no rest.

Before the war with China broke out she was greatly interested in the Koreans, and labored unceasingly for their welfare. She induced the Korean government to build schools, and collected money in Japan for a girls' school. The Koreans worshiped her, and called her "Beloved Mother." She was in China at the time of the Boxer rising, and made a practice of attending the funerals of the dead Japanese soldiers. It was a touching sight, says Mme. Uriu, to see this gray-haired woman kneeling in prayer for the departed souls and one which many times affected the spectators to tears. She went about among the wounded soldiers continually, soothing ing and comforting them and promising them to look after their loved ones at home. She assured them that henceforth her object in life would be to help and relieve the bereaved families, and on her return she went on foot from one end of the kingdom to the other, urging the necessity of a patriotic association upon the leading women. The society was organized in time of profound peace, and before the present war broke out had 30,000 members. This increased to more than 40,000 within a month after the declaration of war.

Princess Iwakura is the president of this society and the empress and other members of the imperial family are patronesses. Marchioness Oyama, a graduate of Vassar, is one of the most active workers and is now collecting money to send presents to the men at the front. Even the schoolgirls have a share in the work and are so anxious to help that they may be seen knitting socks and slippers on the street cars on their way to school.

Since the outbreak of the war a new relief society has been formed for the assistance of families whose male relatives have gone to the front. Princess Mori is chairman of this society. Though it is not customary in Japan for women to go out after the death of their husbands, Princess Mori, for the sake of her charities, has broken through all such convention. The foreign women in Tokio have joined in this relief work and the women of the diplomatic corps have given several entertainments in aid of the fund.

The Red Cross society of Japan is already well known. It is under the patronage of the imperial family, and at the Red Cross hospital in Tokio women of the court and others of high rank meet every three days to roll bandages.

Famous Ship.
The old three-decker Duke of Wellington, once the pride of the British navy, is being broken up at Portsmouth. She was launched in 1852 and headed the fleet that went to the Baltic when war was declared against Russia in 1854. At that time she was the biggest man-of-war in the world, though her tonnage was only 6,071. But she carried 131 guns. "She can fire 300 shots a minute. What can stand up to her?" said a London paper. She was of wood, of course, and represented the produce of 76 acres of forest oak, reckoned at 40 oaks, 100 years old, to the acre.

Total Farming Area.
It is estimated that the total area for farming purposes in the United States is $41,000,000 acres—an area larger than England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, France, Germany, Austria, Spain, Japan and the Transvaal. There are 10,439,000 persons engaged in agricultural pursuits, while all other industries employ but 18,845,000.

Safest Place on Ship.
It is said that the safest place in the world is the deck of a ship. The boat is not unjustifiable. Out of the enormous passenger service to and from the British Isles only 57 persons lost their lives through the wrecking of British vessels last year.
